Subject: CAG Membership

Bill,

To answer your question about how CAG membership is decided, our public affairs division sent me the following information:

Here is the EPA guidance
<http://www.epa.gov/superfund/community/cag/resource/guidance/caguide.pdf>

Membership is decided by the CAG. Most if not all, operate with a charter that defines roles, mission statement and goals. The membership is usually a self-nomination as long as the individual meets the CAG requirements and responsibilities. Every CAG has their own set of rules they follow.

Links to Passaic CAG information can be found at: <http://www.ourpassaic.org/CAG.aspx>

If CPG members have questions about how the Passaic River CAG membership was established, and/or whether and how new members may join, the questions should be directed to the CAG chairpersons. The contact information for the CAG co-chairs can be found at the above web address. If you run into any difficulties in getting a response, please let us know.

Regards,

-Sarah
